Churches in a period of political transition

International conference – Holocaust Memorial Centre, Budapest

In the countries of Central and Eastern Europe, the collapse of the state socialist political regimes and the subsequent disintegration of the federal state formations (Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union) marked the beginning of a new democratic era. The economic difficulties of the transition quickly gave rise to insecurity. The conference will discuss the social role of the churches during the years of political transition.

We aim to cover a wide time span from the second half of the 1980s to the 2000s; however, we do not intend to present and evaluate current political events or legislations. Our speakers will present the distinctive features of the perceptions of the churches' role, their scope of action, and their adaptability to modern political systems.
