Key Action 1

Ayahuasca and the need for a treatment linked to nature: tradition, Amazonian philosophy, and therapeutic potential

Given the growing interest in ayahuasca by the European populations, this course constitutes an opportunity to gain expertise on the traditional practices and rituals of Amazonian medicine from an interdisciplinary perspective.

The course will take place in Cagliari (1-5 July, 2025); the faculty will include traditional Amazonian physicians, pharmacologists, botanists, psychologists, psychiatrists, philosophers/anthropologists, and Latin American cultural experts. The course includes lectures, workshops and the use of audiovisual material.

Topics:

- The Amazonian ontology
 - The practice of ayahuasca in the indigenous and urban context
 - Ayahuasca in literature
 - Ayahuasca and politics
 - Ethnobotanical and psychopharmacological aspects of ayahuasca
 - Toxicological, legal and forensic aspects
 - Therapeutic potential of psychedelics

Key Action 1

La práctica de la ayahuasca y la necesidad de una cura conectada con la naturaleza: tradición, pensamiento amazónico y potencial terapéutico.

Ante un creciente interés por la ayahuasca por parte de las poblaciones europeas, el curso tiene como objetivo proporcionar un conocimiento transdisciplinario sobre las prácticas ancestrales y rituales de la medicina amazónica.

El curso se llevará a cabo en Cagliari durante el mes de julio de 2025. Las clases serán impartidas por médicos tradicionales amazónicos, farmacólogos, botánicos, psicólogos, psiquiatras, filósofos/antropólogos, y estudiosos de la cultura latinoamericana. El curso incluirá el uso de material documental audiovisual y la realización de talleres.

Los temas tratados serán:

- La ontología amazónica
 - La práctica de la ayahuasca en el contexto indígena y urbano
 - La ayahuasca en la literatura
 - Ayahuasca y política
 - Aspectos etnobotánicos y psicofarmacología de la ayahuasca
 - Aspectos toxicológicos, legales y forenses
 - Potencial terapéutico de los psicodélicos

BIP Summer School
Cagliari, 1-5 July 2025
Ayahuasca, Amazonian Practices and Western Practices

Faced with a growing interest from the Western world in the ancestral Amazonian practice of ayahuasca, we propose a course characterized by a precise transdisciplinary vision that highlights points of contact and contrasts. In the approach to practices belonging to other cultural and ontological contexts, sensitivity is required. The perception of reality in the Amazon is fundamentally different from that of the West, especially in the relationship between nature and culture and between humans and non-humans. In this scenario, the division between the disciplines that our structure of knowledge has organized seems to take on an arbitrary character. We firmly believe that bringing together knowledge from different contexts and fields on an equal footing can only benefit the renewal of a dialogue between cultures in the contemporary global context.

During the Summer School "Ayahuasca, Amazonian practices and Western practices", which will be held in Cagliari from 1 to 5 July 2025, Amazonian culture, literature together with pharmacological sciences will be at the centre of an in-depth discussion. Further perspectives will be provided by psychology, where the use of ayahuasca is paving the way for innovative treatments, and anthropology. The presence of an expert in traditional Amazonian medicine, who offers psychophysical treatments based on ayahuasca in Peru, together with local experts deeply integrated into their context, will guarantee approaches that are as much as possible from within their knowledge. Ethics and cultural appropriations will be discussed in the hope of triggering a debate on community practices of sharing knowledge rather than intellectual theft. The course includes the use of audiovisual material such as documentaries and films, debate spaces and round tables.
