A historical map of East Asia and Southeast Asia, centered on China. The map shows provincial boundaries and major cities. A red circle highlights the city of Ledo in Yunnan province. A red line starts from Ledo, follows the northern border of Yunnan, then turns north through Sichuan and Shaanxi provinces, ending at Lianyungang on the coast of the Yellow Sea. The map also shows the Yangtze River and its tributaries. To the east, Taiwan is shown with a pink shading. The South China Sea is labeled, along with the Philippines and parts of Korea and Japan. The Mekong River is labeled flowing through Thailand and Laos. The Bay of Bengal is at the bottom left. A note at the bottom right states: "Boundary representation is not necessarily authoritative."
