Course objectives and requirements

This seminar course aims to introduce ELT majors to the structure and traditions of the educational systems of the United Kingdom and the United States. An overview of the American and the British systems and some alternative philosophies, followed by the examination of some of their language policy and language teaching policy issues, will include close-ups to some problematic issues, reforms and controversies, with two objectives in mind: (1) to make our future teachers knowledgeable on the topic, (2) to open up their mind to different educational philosophies and processes, practical solutions and their consequences.

Students will be required to attend classes and be active, do home assignments (readings/viewings, written/oral reflection, written/audiovisual assignments) and write the end-of-term test. Assessment will be based on class attendance and activity, your assignments and the end-of-term test.

Only three absences (for whatever reason) are tolerated. Presence at the end-of-term test is required.

Academic research and its presentation are embedded in a large dialogue. In the process of thinking and arguing we are necessarily influenced by others: we borrow ideas from other writings and integrate them into our own. You can use others' ideas or words in the form of literal quotes or paraphrases, but you must indicate the source of quotes, paraphrased passages, and all sorts of factual information in all cases. The failure of keeping a correct record of borrowed material, either due to ignorance or to deliberate theft of ideas, is plagiarism. Assignments showing evident signs of plagiarism will fail (see our Guidelines).

Compulsory readings will be made downloadable:
